1. From Lima to La Paz: A Journey with an Oxygen Tank

BZ Travel English Study | video_id: R2FO8sojBKo | 11:08 | 1,236 views

Tresa和Zarko從Lima飛往Juliaca，在12,500英尺的高度下了飛機。他們立刻注意到令人驚訝的稀薄空氣和低氧量。他們的旅程繼續前往玻利維亞邊境，在Puno停下來吃午餐，Puno被稱為秘魯的民俗首府，也是探索的的喀喀湖著名漂浮島嶼的基地。

2. Introduction: Flying to Juliaca

Welcome back to Busy Traveler. In this video, we'll visit Bolivia, Lake Titicaca, La Paz, and face altitude sickness. We just flew from Lima to Juliaca. Stepping off the plane at 12,500 ft, we immediately noticed the surprisingly thin air and low oxygen. Still in Peru, we're heading toward the Bolivian border, stopping for lunch in Puno. As Peru's folklore capital, Puno is the base for exploring Lake Titicaca's floating islands. We planned to visit, but our 1-hour flight to Juliaca took 7 hours — thick fog forced our plane back to Lima to refuel and wait. Since we missed the islands completely, we're just having a late lunch in Puno. We're having trout from Lake Titicaca. This rich, juicy, orange trout surprisingly looks and tastes much more like fresh salmon. To fight altitude sickness, we drank coca tea and bought some coca candy, which mildly improves oxygen uptake.

原本應該是一小時到Juliaca的航班花了七個小時。濃霧迫使飛機返回Lima加油和等待。結果，他們完全錯過了參觀漂浮島嶼，只能在Puno吃個遲來的午餐。儘管遭遇了這些挫折，他們形容Puno是一個非常可愛的小鎮，如果有更多時間，他們很樂意探索。

3. Crossing into Bolivia

Walking this border feels just like climbing a mountain. You feel the lack of oxygen, profound weakness, headaches, and dizziness of this high altitude travel. Welcome to Copacabana. We're still in Bolivia, right? No — we're in Copacabana, Bolivia. After a full day of traveling, we finally arrived. We're spending the night here before heading out on an early morning tour on Lake Titicaca tomorrow.

在Puno，這對夫婦享用了來自的的喀喀湖的新鮮鱒魚午餐，這是世界上海拔最高的可航行湖泊。鱒魚被形容為豐富、多汁、呈橘色，令人驚訝地看起來和吃起來都更像新鮮的鮭魚。儘管旅途困難，這頓飯成了一個亮點。

4. Isla del Sol & Bad News

Our tour brought us to Isla del Sol — a highly populated destination for anyone exploring Lake Titicaca from Copacabana. A key part of the tour involves hiking the high ridge between the old ruins and the main port. However, looking at that steep climb while barely breathing, fighting altitude sickness, cold, and unpleasant rain, we decided to stay on the boat. Then we got some bad news. Our flight from La Paz to Sucre was canceled. The thing of it is because that that flight's canceled, they told us we have to do a 10-hour, 555-km trip over the mountain in 4x4 vehicles — the road is so washed out, potholes, mudslides, blockages, it's going to take over 10 hours. They were going to put 10 of us in two 4x4s with our luggage, three people in the back seat. So Zarco and I said no — we'll rent a third one.

為了對抗高山症，這對夫婦喝了古柯茶，並購買了古柯糖，這能輕微改善氧氣吸收。穿過邊境進入玻利維亞後，稀薄的空氣變得更加明顯。步行穿越邊境感覺就像爬山一樣，伴隨著嚴重的無力感、頭痛和頭暈。

5. Lake Titicaca & The Return Journey

Heading back to Copacabana, the weather cleared, the sun emerged, and the shoreline views were absolutely spectacular. We have just barely touched the tip of this massive lake. It is so enormous that it has its own tides and weather system. Resembling an inland sea, Lake Titicaca is actually considered the South American birthplace of the Incas. The frustrating part about some organized travel tours is spending way more time stuck on the road than actually exploring the places — you end up enduring hours of travel for only brief moments of real discovery.

從秘魯到玻利維亞的邊境過境本身就是一種體驗。他們步行穿過，左側是的的喀喀湖，經過在小型藜麥和馬鈴薯田裡工作的農民。稀薄的空氣使得即使是走路也感覺像劇烈運動。進入玻利維亞後，他們前往Copacabana，高海拔探險仍在繼續。

6. Crossing the Strait of Tiquina

The absolute most surreal experience of this entire trip was crossing the Strait of Tiquina. There is really no bridge here. Local barge operators have famously protested against building one for years — fighting to protect their historical livelihoods and daily income. That white van with the luggage strapped on top is actually our tour van. We nervously watched it drive onto a primitive barge built primarily from wooden planks tied or bolted together, powered entirely by two small outboard motors. These fascinating local ferries are essentially just floating wooden platforms.

7. La Paz

Driving from the lake and passing through the bare highlands, we suddenly discover the chaotic, bustling edge of a truly massive city. Formed exactly like a giant bowl, it perfectly holds La Paz — the highest altitude major city in the world. The high area resting right on the rim is called El Alto and it sits over 13,600 ft. Steep and winding roads lead down to the city center where our hotel sits. La Paz features a unique vertical society — the wealthier locals live in the warmer, westernized valley bottom, while the poorer neighborhoods cling to the steep, thin air of El Alto. Since traditional subways are impossible here, they built an incredible sky subway of clean, quiet cable cars for the most spectacular daily commute on the planet.

8. Altitude Crisis & Closing

The oxygen shortages quickly turned into a medical crisis. We ordered a tall oxygen tank to our room just to sleep, and then sadly cancelled the rest of our Bolivian trip. We really regret missing Sucre, Potosí, and especially the famous salt flats. Desperately needing lower elevation, we booked a flight out to Santiago, Chile the very next morning. In our next video, we explore Santiago, Chile — spending an entire week enjoying the lush parks and vibrant streets of this beautiful capital city.

☒ 文法重點 2 點

點選文法點展開說明

Past Simple for Sequential Narrative

使用簡單過去式來按時間順序敘述事件。這種敘事結構清楚地展示了事件的先後順序，使讀者能夠跟隨旅行者的經歷。

We just flew from Lima to Juliaca. Stepping off the plane at 12,500 ft, we immediately noticed the surprisingly thin air.

使用 'flew' 和 'noticed' 兩個簡單過去式動詞來敘述連續事件。'Stepping off' 是現在分詞短語，表示伴隨動作。

Subject + simple past + [action]. [Verb-ing] + [detail], subject + simple past + [observation].

We planned to visit, but our 1-hour flight to Juliaca took 7 hours. Thick fog forced our plane back to Lima to refuel and wait. Since we missed the islands completely, we're just having a late lunch in Puno.

混合使用過去式 (planned, took, forced, missed) 和現在進行式 ('re having) 來表達從過去到現在的時間過渡。'Since' 表示原因。

Subject + planned to [verb], but [unexpected event] happened. [Adverse condition] + forced + [result]. Since [consequence], [current situation].

用簡單過去式按時間順序描述一個旅行經歷中的三次事件。

Comparative Adjectives for Contrast

比較級形容詞用於對比不同的事物或狀態。影片中使用比較級來強調高海拔環境與正常環境的差異。

This rich, juicy, orange trout, surprisingly looks and tastes much more like fresh salmon.

'Much more like' 是比較級結構，將湖鱒魚的味道和口感與鮭魚進行比較。'Surprisingly' 修飾整個句子，表達意外之情。

[Subject] looks and tastes [comparative] like [something else].

用 'much more like' 比較兩個相似的事物。

☒ 關鍵句型 3 組

點選句型展開範例與練習

Stepping off [transport] at [altitude], [subject] [immediate reaction]

從某交通工具下來時在某高度，某人立即產生了某種反應

Stepping off the plane at 12,500 ft, we immediately noticed the surprisingly thin air.

Stepping off [the plane / the bus / the train] at [altitude / location], [subject] immediately [noticed / felt / experienced] [reaction].

用這個句型描述一個到達高海拔地區的經驗。

What should have been [time A] took [time B]

本應是A時間卻花了B時間

Our 1-hour flight to Juliaca took 7 hours.

What should have been [short time / simple task] took [much longer time / effort].

用這個句型描述一次意料之外的延誤。

To fight [condition], [subject] [remedy]

為了對抗某狀況，某人採取了某種補救措施

To fight settling altitude sickness, we drank coca tea.

To fight [sickness / jet lag / fatigue / heat], [subject] [took / drank / used] [remedy].

用這個句型描述一個應對旅行不適的方法。
